Tourism up over last year

Good summer businesses say

The majority of businesses in Haliburton County have seen increased revenue this past summer due to an increase in American tourists and improved weather conditions over last year, a random telephone survey conducted by The Echo has revealed.

The sample consisted of respondents who owned restaurants, general and hardware stores, real estate companies, marinas, lodges, and service stations. Some 20 businesses were queried on their summer business.

The results showed that twelve of the respondents, or 60 % of the sample, felt that there was a good or significant increase in business over last year. Some five respondents said business remained the same as last year, or there was no significant increase, one said business was down, and two said it was too early to tell.

There were mixed comments about the reasons for the increase in business, but most of the respondents felt that the weather conditions, which were reported better than last year, played a major role in bringing tourists into the area. Others said that there was a definite increase in American spending in the county also.

Alan Bagg, owner of the Eagle Lake Food Store, said "business was just super this summer. We had an increase here over last summer of about 15%." Bagg added that in realistic terms, however, due to inflationary factors, an increase of close to five percent "would be more accurate."

In Lochlin, the owner of the general store there, Bert Smith, said he too, did "very well" this summer. Smith has owned the store for only two summers, but he noted that "there was a great improvement over last year." Smith added that inflation could make the total figures for the summer the same as last year's.

Restaurants seemed to fare the best out of all the businesses which responded. John Hogg, owner of Mr. Fogg's in Carnarvon, said business for his establishment was "very good this past summer - it was well up from last year." Hogg attributes the increase in guests to the improvement in the area's climate.

"It was one of the best summers we've had up here in a while," he added.

Mrs. Reiss, owner of the Hill Top Market and Snack Bar near Haliburton village, said her business in the snack bar has increased this summer also as compared to last year. But in the store, Reiss said that business "stayed about the same."

The Goodie Shop Bakery on HWY. 519 was still smoldering Saturday morning after the building had burned to the ground. No reason for the blaze has been found, however some people living close to the shop said they had heard an explosion prior to the fire.

Fire levels bakery near Wilberforce

A bakery near Wilberforce burned to the ground early Friday morning despite attempts by the 12-man strong Monmouth Fire Department to save it.

The Goodie Shop Bakery on highway 519 was destroyed in the blaze, which burned for several hours.

Damage estimates are not available as yet, however, three trucks and all the equipment in the shop were completely destroyed. No one was in the building at the time.

Monmouth Fire chief Floyd Tighe said the department received the call at 3:20 Friday morning. By the time many of the volunteers arrived at the scene, the "whole roof was gone", said Tighe. Trucks were burning, and the men tried to haul them away with a crane while the vehicles were still blazing.

Reasons for the fire have not yet been determined, however neighbours living near the building at the time said they heard an explosion prior to the blaze. A propane tank was located at the side of the structure, but this was intact when firemen reached the scene. Tighe said they had watered the tank down to prevent it from exploding.

Owner John Brophy and his wife were apparently on vacation at the time of the blaze. He had been in the process of starting a new addition on the shop.

Eva Linkert, owner of Eva's Handicrafts, which is located beside the shop, said her husband was on hand at the fire and said "the whole thing went up in about five minutes." Linkert's husband and another fireman had tried to haul one of the blazing trucks away from the fire.

An investigation by the Fire Marshall has not been requested, and Tighe said that arson is not suspected.

The building was partially insured. The shop supplied two other branch shops owned by Brophy, located in Haliburton and Minden.

The Haliburton shop, operated by Keith Prior, is expected to begin selling another line of baked goods by September 21.

Planning committee says 1.5 percent a year is 'optimistic'

Slow growth predicted for the county

Haliburton County council's planning committee predicts a growth rate in the county of about 1.5 per cent a year over the next 10 to 15 years. And "unless there is a stimulant to economic growth, there is no justification in predicting an accelerated growth rate."

Monmouth arena free and clear committee says

The Monmouth arena is paid for, deputy reeve Keith Tallman confirmed Monday. The final $3,400 of the total $148,088, public sector cost of the arena was made up of $2000 admission receipts from the recent Wintario Draw televised from the arena, and from the approximately $1500 raised at the first annual Wilberforce Rockhound Fair September 2, 3 and 4.

Construction of the new arena began last year, and the building was completed at a total cost of $519,262. Of that amount, $75,000 came in the form of a grant from the Ministry of Culture and Recreation. A further $269,174, came from Wintario grants.

The building was officially opened at a ceremony March 3 attended by a large number of community residents.

"It's been quite a project," Keith Tallman said Monday. "For the size of the community, it's incredible."

In the past, local planning has been the responsibility of municipal councils, and the rate of turnover for subdivision applications has been more than 35 per cent. Under the proposed planning strategy, the responsibility for planning will still rest with municipal councils with "the primary and paramount difference being that the decision making process will be within the context of the county development strategy."

The strategy is intended to apply over a fifteen year period, with provision for updating every five years.

Council's planning committee has decided to pursue "a multi-centred concept through the strategy."

Totten, Sims, Hubki, the planners retained by council for the study, have examined the various townships across the study area, which takes in all county municipalities with the exception of Dysart et al, and have assessed the townships' abilities to sustain growth, the release notes.

At the heart of the strategy as far as residential development is concerned is the idea that new subdivisions should be placed near to existing townships where goods and services are readily available.

The committee says, "the township of Minden emerges as the domain focal point of growth, not only from the viewpoint of the residential sector, but also in the context of commercial and industrial opportunities."

"However", the committee says, "the strategy does not intend that Minden increase appreciably in terms of its role in the county."

The strategy identifies four townships as "major growth hamlets": Dorset, Carnarvon, Wilberforce and Moore Falls are thought to be capable of sustaining subdivision development on a limited scale.

In other hamlets across the county, the strategy envisions only "minor infilling and/or minor extensions to the existing community either in the form of consents to

Enrolment down across the county

Total school enrolment in Haliburton County is down this year by 117 students to 1,417½ students, according to preliminary figures released Tuesday.

Final figures will be available before the end of the month, said education director J.D. Hodgson. He explained kindergarten pupils are counted as half a student because they attend only on alternate days.

A breakdown of the figures shows enrolment is down in all eight schools in the county.

Gooderham is the only school to show an increase in enrolment this year. Its student population increased by one to 41 from 40.

Haliburton Highlands Secondary School has a total enrolment of 645, down 13 from last year. The senior elementary school has 445 students, which is 48 less than 1977. Archie Stouffer Public School has a total enrolment of 447 students, down 43 from last year. Cardiff Public School has 113 students, which is eight fewer than 1977. Dorset

A recent decision by the ministry effecting abatement at INCO is allowing the company to continue to discharge 3,600 tons a day of sulphur dioxide into the environment until 1982.

"But such a conclusion about INCO is not very good news," said the ministry official, "if we are looking for simplistic solutions."

"It really means that the sources of our problem are numerous and international in scope," he says. "A very difficult situation to deal with."

Further examination of ministry information shows a breakdown of total emission of sulphur dioxide. Some two million tons a year comes from other sources in Ontario and northern Quebec and approximately 12 - million tons a year from United States sources.

He explained acid rain can occur from industrial pollution which originates from as far away as 1,000 miles. He said sources of industrial pollution in the United States, such as Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago, are effecting the province.

Acid rain is an international problem, he said, with other countries such as Sweden suffering under a more critical situation than elsewhere. Sweden, he explained has embarked on a $2-million liming program to attempt to combat the problem. The program involves adding lime to the lakes to neutralize the acid. It requires 35 pounds of lime, he said, to neutralize three quarters of a pound of acid.

"Some of you may be aware that Sweden has had to give up somewhat on their policy of seeking abatement at an international level in Europe and have gone to a liming program covering some 500 lakes," said Dr. Brydges. "Not very many lakes in Ontario terms," he added. "But nevertheless an attempt to reduce the impact."

Controversy over the acid rain problem surfaced when a front page story appeared in the Toronto Star last June about the effect of the acid rain in the Haliburton and Muskoka region.

Acid levels in recent years have reached the stage where it may be harmful to the reproduction of the fish population. Acid rain does not pose any danger to humans nor effect the quality of water.

Lakes have a certain amount of natural buffers or chemicals which neutralize mild acids. Pre-Cambrian lakes, like those in Haliburton and Muskoka, have limited amount of buffers, which has been used up over the past two decades, allowing acid levels to rise in the lakes.

Tourist operators reacted critically to the Star story and asked the ministry of the environment for further information about the problem. The ministry has been studying the problem in this area for the past two years and released its most recent report earlier this year.

Art Ward, vice-chairman of Tourism Ontario, an organization of provincial tourist operators, was critical of the Star story. He told Rotarians and ministry officials the story produced unnecessary alarmist overtones about the

An exhausted Tammy Titus takes a rest after her 12-mile walk in the Glamorgan Township Walkathon held Saturday afternoon. Some 32 entrants tried the distance. The money which was received at the event will go to the Glamorgan Park fund.

Veneer company plans new plant

The Wilberforce Veneer and Wood Company Limited will have newer, more modern facilities in about a year, a spokesman for the company said Monday. Bruce Gibbs, Woods superintendent for the Wilberforce operation said a new plant will be built to replace the old, outdated present facilities. The new factory, to be constructed of concrete blocks and steel, will be built on land immediately behind the present factory.

The old mill will continue to operate in its present capacity until the new building is completed in about twelve months.

"It's not an expansion, it's a renewal of the present facility," which is obsolete and badly in need of repair," Gibbs said.

The new plant will be 320 feet by 70 feet and will contain about 23,000 square feet. It is expected that the plant will be in operation producing veneer before the present plant is phased out of operation.

Gibbs said plans call for the plant to operate with the approximately 60 employees who presently work in the old facility.

problem and its effect on the area. He felt the reporting was "irresponsible" because it made it seem as if the death of lakes in Haliburton and Muskoka was imminent.

He wants the ministry to continue its research and to learn more about the lakes ability to buffer the acid. The more information the ministry can supply about acid rain, he says, the better understanding the general public will have of the problem. Objective reporting of the problem will have a beneficial effect, he feels, coupled with more information from the provincial government.

Extensive research is now underway across the province on the acid rain problem, which is mainly the result of industrial pollution.

Dr. Brydges told Haliburton Rotarians the ministry has defined the problem. "We must now gain sufficient understanding of the problem so that effective abatement programs can be designed."

The Wilberforce company is a subsidiary of Curv-Ply Wood Products of Orono, Ontario. Veneer produced at the Wilberforce plant is shipped to Orono, where it is made into a variety of products that are shipped as far south as Texas and throughout much of the U.S.A.

The demand for the company's products continues to be strong, Gibbs said. "This mill hasn't been so busy for the last 10 years."

A contractor from Orono will carry out the major structural work, but is expected that local tradesmen will be used as well, Gibbs said.

Though the plant renewal is not an expansion, Gibbs said Monday that there "is every possibility" of expansion in the future in view of the strong demand for veneer.

Most business people are pleased with good summer appeared to have generally better summers also, the survey revealed.

Mrs. Joe Atkinson at the Pine Grove Tourist Resort in Harcourt said the lodge did "quite well."

"The weather was good all the way through the summer, and we had quite a few guests from the States. The fishing wasn't that good, but the weather made up for that," she said.

Bob Carnegie at Royal View Lodge in Haliburton said he had problems near the middle of August which was due to "a large cancellation by a gymnastics club." But throughout July and the beginning and the latter part of August, Carnegie said that the business "matched last year's."

At the PineStone Inn in Haliburton, manager Wayne McGillvary said that he was quite pleased with the business the summer brought in.

"There was a considerable increase in business over last year and there were a lot of American tourists, probably because of the dollar situation."

McGillvary added that the disco which was featured at the inn throughout the summer "did very well. We had good turn outs, and now we hope to run it once a month."

July and August "were terrific," said Maggie Harrison, owner of the Dominion Hotel in Minden. Weather and the increase in American tourists in the area were the factors that added to the business, said Harrison. She said that "it was slow in the spring, but things really picked up after that."

Miner's Bay Lodge owner Bob Wunker, who has owned the resort for 41 years, said as did several other resort owners, that "it was a good summer because the weather was good." Wunker noted that the lodge is usually filled during July and August anyway, but "if the weather is lousy, people will want to check out early but we didn't have too much of that happening."

Marinas and service stations around the county reported little or no increases in business.

At Pawson Marine in Minden, Ross Pawson said July and August were "good months", but he added because of the poor spring, "business was down a little bit."

Pawson said he hasn't noticed an increase in business over last year, and business was actually slightly down during these summer months.

"I don't have a clue why. I know I haven't sold as many sailboats this year as I did last year," he added.

The owner of Dale's Texaco in Gooderham, Mrs. Dale Oldham, said the season "was better than I'd expected. I think it had a lot to do with the good weather, but I wouldn't say there was much more of an increase over last year."

Real Estate showed no drastic increase this summer over last, but improvements were evident.

"Last year was a very poor year," said Floyd Hall. "I think maybe people have come out of their shell a little bit. Prices are more realistic around here this year than last," he said.

During the summer, Hall noted that he sold more lakefront property lots as compared to last year. In rough terms, he said, "business probably increased 15 to 20 percent. People are looking at their property again and figuring that maybe it's not worth as much as they had originally thought."

John Perry at Robert Taylor Realty Ltd., said "houses were selling slow for us. The homes we were trying to sell were mainly in the $49,000 bracket." As far as cottages went, Perry added that these sold comparatively better than they did last summer.

Rose VanNood was very enthusiastic over the business she did at the Driftwood restaurant in Haliburton. Business also increased for her during the warm months. "It was the best summer we ever had," she said.

Walkers suffer aches, pains for Gooderham park funding

There were a few blisters and sore legs, but most of the 32 people who started out on the Glamorgan Township walkathon managed to do the 12 mile limit in good time in Gooderham last Saturday afternoon.

Proceeds from the walkathon will go toward the costs for the new Glamorgan park, of which the first phase of construction has started.

Later in the afternoon, a flea market was also held to help defer costs from the park plans.

But it was the walkathon that produced the most participation in the day. Participants gathered at the park dance hall at 9 a.m. Saturday morning with sponsor sheets to see if they could beat the distance. There were even some local joggers who turned up for the event. Blair Pierce made the route in 97 minutes; he was the fastest finisher of the day.

Others who preferred a slower form of travel said the route was pleasant and comfortable to walk.

"The walking was the easy part," said Rod MacDonald, who made the circuit in a little over three hours, "but now I have to get the money!"

Julie Hunter said the "walk was good - real good." Hunter added that she was surprised that she had made the walk so easily.

Thirst and stiffness were the only two things that 15 year old Tammy Titus said she had to contend with. She walked with a limp at the end of the day and she exhaustedly reported that "my legs are killing me."

Five-year old Greg Hunter didn't quite go the distance, but he did make four miles, supervised of course. Greg was getting a little tired, so mom dropped by in her car and picked him up.

The only animal in the walkathon, Riley the dog, made the distance with his master in three hours and eighteen minutes. Riley didn't have much to say about the walk, but the first thing he did when they met the finish line was look for the nearest piece of ground to flop out on.

Glamorgan township clerk Elva Bates said the walkathon may raise an estimated $2,000 according to sponsor sheets which have been filled out. The township also raised $35 by renting tables at the flea market, and $80 on their own garage and rumage sale.

Township okays study for community centre

Township of Glamorgan council last week agreed to commission a feasibility study for a community centre building which will be located at the new park under construction in Gooderham.

The study, 50% of which is being financed by Wintario at a cost of $2500, should be ready in two months time, said Glamorgan clerk, Elva Bates. It is being completed by Totten, Sims and Hubicki, and is part of the overall plan for the proposed park.

The study is mandatory if the township is to apply for a grant from the Ministry of Recreation under the Community Recreations Act. Other funding may come from Wintario, New Horizons and the Parks Assistance Act, said Bates.

The study will examine the need for a recreation building in the community, and will look into the method of funding the building. Impact on the taxpayer will also be examined.

The park itself is being constructed on a 15-acre site and will include tennis courts and a swimming area along the Burnt River. It will also feature an open-air sports complex.

Part-time volunteers from the fire hall in Gooderham will construct an 80 ft. footbridge which will cross the river into the park from the hall.

Woman faces two fraud charges

An investigation by Ontario Provincial Police at the Minden detachment has led to the charging of a West Guilford woman, Anna Barry, 35, with 46 counts of false pretences and two charges of fraud.

Barry was originally charged in August with two counts of false pretences after she had written two cheques with insufficient funds July 13 and 14 at the Red and White store in Minden. The value of the cheques, written for purchases at the store, was $35.

Further investigation by police revealed Barry had issued more cheques with insufficient funds.

She will appear in provincial court in Minden September 19.

A break-in at Shamrock Shell in Haliburton last Wednesday resulted in a total of $1,088 being stolen from the service station.

The building was entered through the front door and four cash boxes, containing cheques, cash and credit card vouchers were taken.

Police say the thief or thieves appeared to have an inside knowledge of the premises, since lights were turned off using switches not readily visible.

Police also say it was the first time the owners had neglected to remove cash receipts from the premises overnight.

Damage to the motorcycle was estimated by Ontario Provincial Police at the Minden detachment at $300.

The detachment investigated six other motor vehicle accidents.

Two Minden women suffered major injuries following a two-car accident last Sunday at 5:52 p.m. on Minden concession road number two.

Nellie Miscio, 51, was the driver of an eastbound vehicle which collided with a westbound car, driven by Linell Elstone, 30, of Guilford township, on the crest of a hill. Both the driver of the eastbound car and her passenger, Annie Miscio, 79, suffered major injuries. Elstone suffered minor injury as a result of the collision.

Damage was estimated at $2,000 to each motor vehicle.

The committee also notes that the information released Monday only "touches on the surface" of the strategy.

It is not yet clear how much detail the committee intends to release at the public meetings in October.

Both vehicles were west-bound when the driver of the lead truck, Frank Howe, 70, of R.R. #1, Haliburton, turned to the left side of the road to make a right turn. The vehicle behind him, driven by Norman McKnight, 23, of Minden, struck the Howe truck as it turned across in front of him. The Howe vehicle struck a tree after the collision.

Damage to the Howe truck was estimated at $2,500, while the McKnight vehicle received $1,000.

Howe has been charged with making an improper right turn.

A 23-year-old Mississauga man, Steven Herbert, was charged with careless driving after a single vehicle accident September 4 at 4:15 p.m. on Highway 648.

Police said the southbound vehicle entered the west ditch of the highway and rolled over.

A 57-year-old Haliburton resident, Russell Woodcock, was charged with failing to yield following a two-vehicle accident September 5 at 5 p.m. at the junction of Park and Pine streets in Haliburton.

Fill up the tank constable!

Minden detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police will have to seriously consider upgrading the lighting at its detachment if the OPP again wish to avoid being mistaken for a service station.

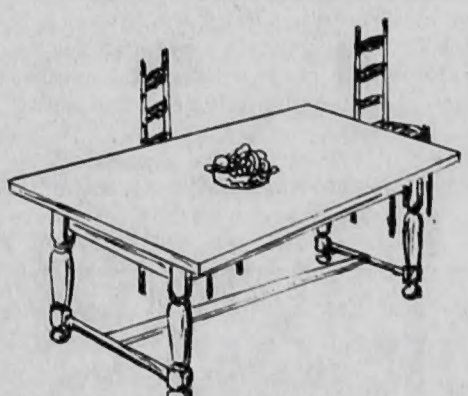

A 39-year-old Toronto resident, William MacKenzie, drove his vehicle last Saturday at 8:45 p.m. over a stone curb, over a holding tank and across 100 feet of lawn before stopping at an embankment in front of the main entrance to the detachment.

Following his arrest, and after a charge of impaired driving was laid against him, he complained to police that the parking area at the detachment was not sufficiently lighted.

He was apparently running low on gasoline and mistook the detachment for a service station.

An easy out

The acid rain problem that has been plaguing Canadian shield lakes in Ontario for more than 20 years isn't likely to be eliminated in the near future, according to Dr. Tom Brydges of the Ontario Ministry of the Environment. In a speech to the Haliburton Rotary Club last week the head of the ministry's Limnology and Toxicity branch said the air pollution problem that gives rise to acid rain is international in scope. The fact that much of the pollution present in Ontario air comes from United States industry means that international co-operation on pollution controls is vital, he said.

That does not mean, however, that the provincial government should stand back and allow pollution of Ontario air from Ontario sources under the pretext that those sources are insignificant. Yet, that is exactly what has been happening. The government continues to bow to pressure and veiled threats from polluters, and the quality of Ontario air continues to suffer.

In his speech, Brydges attempted to downplay the ministry's recent decision to allow the International Nickel Company to continue to pump thousands of tons of sulphur dioxide into the air every day. INCO discharges some 1.3 million tons of the compound into the atmosphere each year. This amount represents only 10 per cent of all the sulphur dioxide present in Ontario air, Brydges said.

Yet the ministry official also indicated that the total amount of sulphur dioxide from all Ontario sources was only two million tons. INCO, then, discharges more than 50 per cent of all the sulphur dioxide pumped into the air by Ontario industry. Seen in that light, the government's decision to allow INCO to discharge 3,600 tons of pollutant into the air every day seems reprehensible.

Industry argues that pollution control devices are expensive to install, and that the cost of those devices could make Ontario products uncompetitive on international markets. The truth is, however, that tax concessions would make the cost of that equipment far easier for industry to bear than it admits.

The problem is an international one and pollution abatement must be a joint effort on behalf of the United States and Ontario. But the longer the arguments go on about the difficulties involved, the longer it will take for a meaningful abatement program to be implemented.

The government of Ontario should stop hiding behind statistics and face the facts. Lakes in Haliburton, Muskoka and other precambrian rock areas of the province are becoming acidified, and a significant amount of that acid is caused by industrial pollution from Ontario sources.

Tough laws on a province wide basis wouldn't solve the whole problem, but they would buy a little more time until the United States could be convinced to implement a workable abatement program.

It's time the provincial government showed some leadership. The lakes can't wait much longer.

A warning

Summer business throughout the county was good to excellent, according to the majority of resort owners, business people and merchants contacted in a random telephone survey this week. The optimistic news, however, could be a warning in disguise.

Twelve out of 20 businesses said sales were up over last year. And most of those contacted attributed the improved season to the good weather which made the Highlands attractive to tourists. As well, the shaky position of the Canadian dollar was thought by many to have been responsible for an increase in American visitors to the area.

Neither of these factors is insignificant of course, but it is revealing to note that not one business attributed an increase in sales to factors over which those businesses had control. Not one resort owner said improved facilities had brought in more paying guests, and not one merchant said he had offered more products and better service.

Tourism is too important to Haliburton County to be left to the whims of weather and the fluctuating dollar.

No one can guarantee that next year will be a good summer if success or failure is based on the presence of sunshine or the lack of it. Nor can the Canadian dollar be relied upon to remain well below the level of American currency.

The only predictable element in the industry is the merchants, resort owners and business people who depend on tourism. They must find out what tourists want, and offer vacations that can be enjoyed with or without sunshine. Merchants must be pleasant and helpful, and must make tourists feel like they want to come back.

A concerted effort to promote the Highlands effectively would also diminish the unpredictability of the upcoming seasons.

Service and facilities, not weather and weak dollars bring people back.

To the Editor:

As people "who are paranoid about cancer-causing agents" ("HPB on Protection Trail; as Other See it", Sept. 6, 1978) we are certainly not 'reassured' by the Health and Welfare Ministry inaction concerning nitrite regulation. In fact, we would only be reassured if further restrictions were implemented. H & W would be more credible if it showed more initiative. Consistently, it sits back and watches how the F.D.A. (Food & Drug Administration, U.S.A.) handles successive issues. It is sad that MRC & NRC (Medical & National Research Councils) funding has been cut back to the level that it is all Canada can do to "monitor world experience...and investigations."

Nitrites do prevent production of botulin in cured meats, and ingestion of the botulin toxin is an immediate health risk. Each person must decide whether the short-term solution to possible botulin poisoning is worth a long-term risk of (mainly) gastric cancers.

The HPB rat study, as outlined, seems designed on an hypothesis that nitrites alone will induce cancers. But evidence points not to nitrites but to nitrosamines as the cancer-causing chemicals. Nitrosamines from from the reaction of nitrites with amine-containing chemicals found in, among other things, tea, coffee and cigarette smoke. Incidence of gastric cancers seems related to nitrosamine formation in the acidic conditions of the stomach. It is not clear if the HPB study included any nitrosamine-producing chemicals in the rat's diet and it is certainly doubtful that the rats had a cup of coffee and a cigarette with their morning bacon! - a "practical condition of use" of bacon for humans.

Further, it is well known that rat-data may not compare to the human experience. Humans are often ten to one hundred times more sensitive to a given substance than test animals. For instance, testing of thalidomide on pregnant rats produced none of the gross mutagenic effects found for humans.

In sum, we do not feel the "added assurance" Miss Begin feels we should regarding the safety of nitrites. But we would agree with SJK of the Governments and the people who work for them have a fondness for two things in particular - statistics and votes. And they often make use of one to help them get the other.

Statistics have become an integral part of the Canadian way of life. Statistics Canada is an entire bureaucracy whose function is to produce numbers on just about every aspect of Canadian life. A sample of recent release reveals that in July, 56 urban transit systems across the nation collected 88,607,782 initial fares over 31,226,973 miles with operating revenues of $32,473,297.00. As well, the non residential construction input price index of 192.8 rose 0.4% from June's 192. The preliminary total of failures under the provisions of the Bankruptcy and Winding-up Acts was 1,343 during the second quarter of 1978. Average weekly earnings rose 6.7 per cent in June to $268.80 a week. And so on.

All these statistics no doubt have a use, and are an indicator of certain trends in Canadian society that are significant to some people. Few politicians could quote these statistics to voters with any effect however, because the statistics don't touch on areas that are of concern to the average citizen.

But when statistics are used by the government to prove this or that point, we ought to be suspicious. For example, once a month or so, the public and the opposition parties wait with baited breath for the release of unemployment statistics from across the nation. The figures are always prefaced with "seasonally adjusted" (read "lower than they really are") and are expressed as a percentage of the total workforce. Eight per cent unemployment may not seem like very much because it means that 92 per cent of the workforce have jobs, but when you translate the percentage into real people it means 800,000 Canadians who want to work cannot.

Statistics can be manipulated to prove whatever point an individual wants them to prove. But the important thing is that statistics are numerical truths provided they have been compiled accurately, but they are not absolute truths when they are used for political gain.

Last week, Dr. Tom Brydges of the Ministry of the Environment spoke on the acid rain problem to members of the Haliburton Rotary club. His speech contained a number of statistics, all designed to demonstrate that the ministry was doing the best it could to come to terms with the acid rain problem. One statistic in particular stands out as justification for a healthy scepticism to numbers presented in political speeches.

"If we look at total emission of SO₂ (sulphur dioxide) within the possible zone of effect, we find some 2.0 million tons per year from other sources in Ontario and Northern Quebec and approximately 12 million tons per year from U.S. sources. INCO discharges 1.3 million tons yearly or about 10 per cent of the total."

The Ministry of the Environment recently gave INCO permission to pump some 3,600 tons per day of sulphur dioxide into the air until 1982. If we accept the premise that "ten per cent of the total" isn't very much, then the Ministry's action seems less significant than it might if we looked at another way. INCO may pump out only ten per cent of the total in Ontario air, but it produces almost 50 per cent of the tonnage of sulphur dioxide discharged by industries within Ontario's borders. Surely that is a significant amount by anyone's measurement.

Statistics are numbers and aren't harmful in themselves. It's when they're interpreted for political purposes by politicians and bureaucrats that we ought to be suspicious. There's usually another side to whatever problem they're intended to address.

Feir Play

by Creighton Feir

In reviewing the past summer, I think that we all have to agree that if business was down in some areas that there is one excuse that we can't use and that's the weather. During the two months of July and August with very few exceptions the weather as far as vacationing was concerned was ideal. As far as this past summer is concerned compared with other summers it's hard to know or judge if more people came back than in previous years and did the merchants, resorts and trailer camps do a bigger business this year or not. As no records seem to be kept it's hard to make comparisons. For instance some people in business seem very encouraged and say that they had an outstanding summer financially as well as traffic through their place of business, while others say will tell us that as far as they were concerned it was a complete disaster. I think it boils down to the fact that if anyone thinks that they can make a living in the Highlands of Haliburton in two months they are only kidding themselves. You have to operate twelve months of the year. One complaint that we hear is that as far as tourism is concerned here in the Highlands we cannot go ahead until some accommodations that we now have are updated. We must also ask ourselves the question, are we giving the visitors and cottage owners enough service and are we going out of our way to make them welcome so that they will want to come back again. The Tourist industry is now a competitive market and everyone in Ontario will have to get with it.

There's no better way to bring people together than through sports. Whether it be hockey, curling, golf, baseball, or what have you, the participation that goes along with sports seems to be the way to get people to know each other better. We get sick, sore and tired of hearing of the violence in hockey and football. Possibly there is a bit of this but nothing compared to the violence that we watch on television and on the movie screens. There is enough gloom and doom in this country now and what we need is something to laugh about instead of having to sit there and watch these depressing programs. What we need to hear on TV is more good music as it does wonders for the soul. There is plenty of good comedy programs on that will give you a much needed laugh and we also have to be fed spiritually with programs such as the Bill Graham Crusades. You can catch these on TV from time to time.

It would appear that NSF cheques are flying around the county like rubber balls. It's an offence to issue an NSF cheque and if you receive one back from your bank just get in touch with the Minden Detachment of the OPP.

The Municipality of Dysart et al have announced that connections to Phase 2 of the Haliburton Sewage Works can now begin (except at the Senior Elementary School and the Red Cross Hospital). All property owners are urged to connect at the earliest possible date.

In Haliburton it seems that we have plenty of things to do for the children, there are places for those over the age of 19 to go and now we have an organization for the Senior Citizens. There is one age group that we seem to be ignoring. These are the teenagers 18 and under. In this village we have the facilities so we can't use this for an excuse. What should be done is to utilize one of these facilities and put in a pool table, a couple of pin ball machines, a badminton net and records for the teenagers to dance to. Granted if this youth centre if you want to call it that, would have to be chaperoned, then this should be no problem if each and every parent who have teenagers would take a turn. We also believe that once in a while members of the OPP wouldn't mind dropping in and helping out. We would certainly like to hear your suggestions on this matter so why not write a letter to the editor and voice your views in this newspaper.

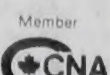

The village of Wilberforce without a doubt is an up and coming community with progressive ideas. Just take a trip over that way and see the wonderful facilities they have there and just look at the active people who make Wilberforce go. It seems to us that they have some attraction on most week-ends of the year. Nothing seems to be too big for them to tackle and they are to be congratulated on having the Wintario draw in their new arena. We also heard on good authority that the Wilberforce Veneer Co. are planning on putting on a large addition to this present industry and that rumors are flying that they are now looking into the matter of constructing an indoor swimming pool. It's a go ahead village with go ahead ideas. Keep up the good work.

Everyone loves to be a winner and they work hard toward this goal. It would appear to us that the Toronto Argos football club practice hard in the act of losing. They can turn a victory into defeat in less than six seconds. How this can be done we will never understand.

The main street of Haliburton was a hive of activity on Tuesday, September 5th, when the film crew who are making the movie "Summer Camp" brought their equipment and actors into Haliburton. They shot scenes at the Molou Theatre in the afternoon and then moved to Mark's Coffee Shop for the evening action. The movie which is being produced in Haliburton and surrounding area should be a big comedy hit when it hits the screen. We understand that the film crew will be in the area for about another three weeks.

Our congratulations to all the winners in the Minden Furniture Big Fun Contest that ended recently. Special congratulations to 1st prize winner Lynne Cox of Minden who won a trip for two to the Bahamas.

From the Chamber

by Bob Stinson

It's Been Three Years

Three years ago I walked into the Chamber of Commerce Office, which was then located in the basement of the County Registry Building, for the first time. I had been hired to do what I am doing now, but I had absolutely no experience or training in this type of work. Marion Arntfield, who had spent many years working with the Chamber greeted me and began carefully training her new boss. With considerable help from Marion and some very understanding directors we began to get our act together.

A number of friends said they didn't know whether to congratulate me or offer condolences when I told them of the new job I had undertaken. Not only was there difficulty convincing sufficient individuals to serve as directors, but an additional problem of getting a quorum to attend an annual meeting to elect them.

This year we anticipate that the annual meeting will be a sell out, as it was last year. Indications are that for the first time in recent memory we may even have an election, with more directors offering to serve than there are positions for. This would be a very healthy sign indeed.

I am pleased of course with the accomplishments that we have made over the last three years, but I am also aware that there is still much to be done. An anniversary is an occasion I think, to pause for a moment and reflect, and then look ahead to the future. I am happy to say I am much better equipped for that future, having not only three years experience, but the benefits of a number of informative seminars and training programs that the directors have been kind enough to allow me to participate in. I feel these are particularly valuable, when you consider after all, that a Chamber manager is the only person in any community doing what he is doing. When we get together with others in the same profession we are able to benefit a great deal from the exchange of ideas.

Elaine Blakey, the Chamber's dedicated secretary, is also celebrating an anniversary, having been with us for the past two years. Chamber offices by their very nature, and particularly this one, are usually in a state of organized confusion and Elaine deserves a great deal of thanks and appreciation for coping with me and all the other problems she contends with.

My Apologies

The purpose of the merchant-consumer surveys taken by the Experience '78 students this summer was to provide meaningful background material for the business people in both Minden and Haliburton from which they can build a positive plan of action. The ultimate aim would be to see each town create a Business Improvement Area plan and put it into effect as a result. The surveys have been completed but are not yet in a form that the directors feel is suitable for general release.

As a result of interviewing both the students and myself the newspapers have published articles about the survey which are very negative in nature. The surveys asked for criticism so it is not surprising that the results are negative. Releasing this much information was a mistake in judgement on my part and I apologize for it. Any adverse publicity it is hoped can be replaced by announcements of positive action to be undertaken by the merchant's associations.

The Corduroy Enduro

Over 300 trail bikes will be invading the Highlands once again this weekend. Not only do these participants add a considerable amount of dollars to our local economy each year, but their advance crews contribute a considerable amount of work to improving the snowmobile trails over which much of their course is laid out. I know they are noisy, but it only lasts for a short while. Please welcome them, as we do, and encourage them to return.

Goderich Signal Star that nitrite-cured "foods are as safe as most on sale at supermarkets everywhere."

To "paranoids" such as us, every government action or inaction invites the question "Who benefits?" The Pork Producers Associations will certainly continue to market nitrite-laced cured meats so long as people will buy. Health-care delivery systems will continue to grow in order to deal with cancer patients. And, of course, fresh nitrite-free bacon, weiners, and ham will be at a premium price for those who do their own choosing, and not the government's.

Pic of the Past

Well, as one can see there have been many changes made in the village of Haliburton since this photo was taken. It's a birds eye view of Haliburton in 1931. It would appear that the picture was taken from what we now call Skyline Park on top of the mountain. As you can see the area has certainly been built up since that time and the open area to the right is where the present Dysart Community Centre now stands. Our thanks to John Robert Woods of Hamilton for submitting this photo.

Bill Smiley

There are only two really important words when you take your trip to Europe. One is "toilet" and the other is "money." Each is a constant source of anxiety, fascination and frustration.

In general, the ladies worried about the toilets, and the men about the money.

As our vivacious guide, Annette, informed us, you don't ask on the continent where the bathroom is, or you're apt to get a response something like, "Watsa mata you lady? You wanna taka bath in a restaurant?" No, you blurt out "Toilet?" It's the same in every language, so you can't go astray.

There was only one thing wrong with our bus. It had comfortable seats, airconditioning, a superb driver. But no "bathroom" at the rear. So you sailed off at 7 a.m., full of morning coffee, and shaky in the knowledge that you might be on that bus for two or three hours before a halt and the magic word, toilets, leaped into view.

It wasn't bad for the men, but there was always a line-up for the ladies', the door often guarded by a fierce old harridan who demanded 100 lira or a franc piece before they were even admitted to the inner sanctum. From what I heard and saw, the facilities ranged from spanking clean with hot water and lots of towels, down through pretty sleazy, with tissue the texture of wall-paper, to the very pits, which were just that, holes in the ground, from which the ladies emerged looking a bit stunned, rolling back down the legs of their pant suits.

In a little more than 3,000 miles, only two emergency stops were made. One was for Larry, 8, who had drunk three cans of pop at the last stop, and had the distinction of having a tinkle right beside the auto-route in France. The second was when Graham, a young Australian, (pronounced Grime in that language) was hit by a sudden attack of bad tummy and spent half an hour emitting at both ends in a filthy roadside toilet. Nobody minded either stop.

Enough about toilets, surely. Now, about money. First of all, take more than you need. You'll need it. By the time I got back to London, on a weekend, banks closed, I was so broke I had to borrow five pounds from the hall porter at our hotel.

Before you begin your trip, obtain from your travel agent or airline a little chart, or table, showing the approximate value of your own dollar in European currencies. It won't help much, but it will be something to cling to in the maelstrom of five or six different currencies changing value from day to day.

For example, I changed some dollars for lira three times in one day, in Italy. First time, I got 850 lira for a dollar, second time 830, third time 800.

Get rid of your loose change before you cross a border, even if you have to buy some candy and pass it around the bus. Each country will change paper money but it is not interested in coins. You would wind up with a suitcase full of utterly useless francs, lira, marks, schilling, etc. I have enough to start a coin collection.

Millions of tourists are honey to flies for the international pickpockets who infest the large cities. Our guide, la belle Annette, warned us so thoroughly, especially as we headed toward Rome, that we were a sight to behold after two days there. The women were all humpbacked from clutching their purses to their bosoms with both hands. The men looked like a group of spastics, trying to keep their hands firmly in all their four to eight pockets at the same time.

Report from Queens Park

by MPP John Eakins

My colleagues and I, in the Liberal Party are committed to free enterprise and to ensuring a strong corporate sector in the years ahead, at the same time protecting the futures of the people who work within our free enterprise economy. In this connection, we are very concerned about the situation with respect to pension plans in Canada. Stuart Smith has compared the financial status of these plans to a ticking timebomb, the eventual explosion of which would have devastating effects for corporations, governments and hundreds of thousands of pensioners.

Indications are that the Canada Pension Plan and many private plans are in danger of going broke, because the level of benefits paid out has been allowed to rise much faster than the level of contributions. Even two years ago, a survey of some 100 Canadian corporations revealed unfunded pension liabilities of $930 million.

Rapidly escalating salaries in the last decade have sharply increased the debts of most pension plans, which calculate benefits on a percentage of an employee's top earning years or career average earnings. Claims on pension plans are now far greater than most actuaries predicted when contribution schedules were established. Unless pension plan financial imbalances are resolved quickly, hundreds of thousands of working Canadians will not be able to collect a cent from pension plans to which they have contributed.

For the Canada Pension Plan, the break-even point will be reached in 5 years - 1983. At that point, the plan will be paying out more in current benefits than is received in premiums. The surpluses of past years will be exhausted by the end of the century, approximately, and unless contributions are greatly increased before that time, the Canada Pension Plan will go broke. To quote Canadian Business magazine, "The mounting deficits are staggering. Canada's provinces at present owe their civil service pension plans a total of $10 billion, and in addition, they are in debt to the Canada Pension Plan by more than $12 billion. As for the private plans, whose combined assets total about $24 billion, incredibly, no one has yet done a comprehensive check on how far short they are of being able to pay the benefits they're committed to pay."

Problems are compounded by the fact that the number of elderly people in Canada will double in the next thirteen years. That same postwar "baby boom", which has moved like a tidal wave through our school system is now entering the workforce; inevitably, it will have an impact on the pension plans, as the post-war "babies" become senior citizens, and fewer and fewer workers support more and more pensioners. Lowering the mandatory age of retirement from the present 65 would create further difficulties.

The impending pension crisis will have an effect on business and government. Companies are obliged to make up any shortfall in their private pension plans, and the liability can be enormous. Of Canadian companies surveyed by the Financial Executives Institute, nearly 20 per cent of those with pension plan shortfalls face liabilities amounting to more than one year's after-tax earnings.

Dwindling pension funds will have considerable impact on the Government of Ontario, whose recent enormous spending deficits have been financed almost entirely by borrowing from pension fund surpluses - which end in 1982. Not only must we readjust expenditure patterns to avoid raiding the capital markets, but beginning in 1987 we must, in addition, find hundreds of millions of dollars every year till the end of the century in order to repay our borrowings from public pension plans. Even this year, we must repay $175 million; our annual repayment will rise to $701 million in 1987, and to more than $1 billion in 1997.

We can no longer ignore the pension "time-bomb". Moreover, workers who are contributing benefits in the belief that they are ensuring adequate retirement incomes must be told the truth about the impending crisis. The imbalance between benefits and contributions in public pension plans must be rectified. Every company with unfunded pension liabilities should reveal the full extent of those liabilities in their financial statements, and every company with unfunded pension liabilities should be required to declare the means by which those liabilities will be met. Investors have a right to know of these claims on the company's future profits and working people have a right to know the status of their promised retirement incomes.

There should be immediate vesting of pension rights for all workers who contribute to private plans. All pension rights should become fully portable. At present, in many cases, people who leave their employment before age 45, or with less than ten years service, lose their pension rights and are refunded only their contributions, plus interest. In addition, protection should be provided for the senior worker who has contributed to a private pension plan throughout his career, but is now often left with no pension benefits when his employer shuts down.

If the impending pension crisis is to be averted, we must plan and act now, without delay. Otherwise, several million Canadians will find that after a lifetime of contributions, they are unable to collect their pension benefits.

To the Editor:

I am really shocked that you so blatantly published an ad for school safety showing a school house with an American flag flying over top (page 12 - Aug. 30).

I have ignored many of the misprints in your paper but an American flag I can't. Try again, this is Canada. Do you know what our flag looks like? Or are you advocating that our children be sent to the States for schooling?

Look at what you are printing, next time.

Rough play on increase officials say

The action was rough around the plate during the Haliburton-Minden ladies softball game last Tuesday. Haliburton came out on top 15-9 when the dust finally settled.

Ladies softball finals

Haliburton ousts Rockcliffe

by Helen Burk

In the report of last week's games it was mentioned that the Haliburton ladies bubble had broken. The Rockcliffe ladies certainly had their break last Thursday night. The Haliburton ladies were up for this game after being beaten by the Minden Rockcliffe ladies by such a bad score the week before. Nancy Maughan pitched a strong game to lead the Haliburton ladies to a 15-9 victory to take a 2-1 lead in the play-offs. Cindy Scheffee and Sheila Elston led the hitting for Haliburton. Neida Cully took the loss.

On Thursday night these same two teams met in Haliburton and the Haliburton team was still flying high and never looked back after the second inning. Nancy Maughan, Fay Schonhoffer and Laurie Scheffee were the bit hitters for Haliburton while Lyn Winans had a perfect night only in a losing cause. Nancy Maughan was the winning pitcher. Final score was 27-24. Haliburton wins the series three games to one.

In the other series no games were played last week because of the weather. Carnarvon leads that series two games to none.

Local hockey officials in Haliburton claim that the mandatory use of some safety equipment in minor hockey and the fact that fighting has been banned under the OMHA rules are causing an increase in careless roughing on the ice.

In response to an article which appeared in the Globe and Mail last week quoting an Ottawa hockey official who said, "If they dress like gladiators, they'll play like gladiators." Leonard Salvatori, Haliburton minor hockey president, says the problem is also evident in Haliburton. "I saw more incidents last year," said Salvatori, "I think he's right."

Today, when a goalie goes to pick up a puck, the kids will get careless and hit and poke the goalie a lot more because they know he's well protected."

Though Salvatori says the roughing has gone "a little too far", major penalties have significantly dropped over the past years, and general "dirty play" is not as evident as it was in past years.

"The sticks fly around a little bit, and when you've got a scramble around the net, nobody cares as much as they use to, but I think it's better than it was. None of the kids are slashing or poking as much, and that was just plain dirty," said Salvatori.

But he adds that he did "see some pretty bad scenes last year, particularly in mid-get, bantam and juvenile."

Salvatori thinks the coaches and managers of each team involved should tell the players or warn them about over-roughing in scrambles.

Ed Grimshaw, an executive member of the OMHA and area representative for the minor teams in Haliburton County, claims that the possibility of equipment presenting this kind of danger "is not true."

"We're interested in protecting the boy, that's all," he contended.

Grimshaw argued that because penalties were down significantly in the past year, he "can't believe that this is happening."

"I look after 457 hockey teams and I can tell you that I definitely disagree with what the gentleman has to say in that story. I commend everybody in the northern sector for keeping the penalties down," said Grimshaw.

When asked about the possibility of unseen dirty play which the referees may miss, Grimshaw said, "well, the referees may make some mistakes, but they're human, and I think most of them do a pretty good job."

OHA referee and Haliburton citizen Bill Davis says that there is a definite increase in rough play.

"The kids seem to have no fear of hurting each other anymore, but," says Davis, "it's not because of the mandatory equipment - it's because they took fighting out of the game. I've never seen anybody seriously hurt over fisticuffs."

Davis maintains that rule changes have not proved to be viable solutions to the careless play, and because of the fact that fighting has been banned in minor hockey, "kids are looking at other ways to get their aggression out."

Davis suggested that the officials simply aren't calling the infractions which result from careless play stemming from the mandatory equipment rule.

"Positioning is very important when refing, and you've got to be on the ball," he said. "The kids know and the parents feel that hockey is getting rougher, but if the parents think the sport is too rough for their kid, then why do they let them play?" he said.

Walter Williams of Haliburton caught his 16-pound lake trout last week on Drag Lake. Williams had been out fishing with his father and caught the beauty on a Dominion 777 spoon.

Double luck at golf club

Two summer visitors accomplished a rare feat earlier this month at the Blairhampton Golf Club near Minden.

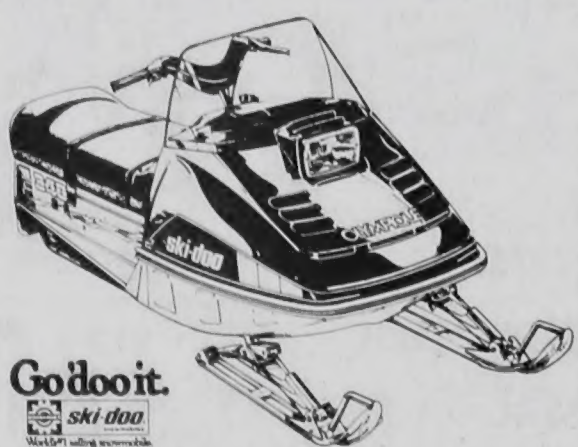

Both collected a hole-in-one on the same hole within two days of each other.

Howard Toaze of Oshawa, a cottager on Drag Lake, used a five-iron on the 173-yard, par three, third hole September 1, while Tom Hayden of Toronto accomplished his ace with a six-iron September 3. Blairhampton is a nine-hole, 2,904 yard course. The third tee is the second shortest hole on the par 36 course. The shortest is 164 yards and the longest 453.

The third hole is an elevated tee which leads straightaway downhill to the green.

News from Extendicare

by Dr. O.W. Anderson

A few of us, together or separately, have gone to the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, and all boast what a good time they had circulating about the various show buildings, taking in some of the midway rides and other attractions. One lad of our acquaintance decided on his own, on something special. Wandering down to waters edge he disrobed except for the shorts he was wearing and into the water he went, staying in until he felt he had had enough, then came out to find his clothing gone. He appealed to a policeman he encountered, who said he could do nothing, so this boy was obliged to take in the "ex" clad only in wet shorts that soon dried. Among his clothes were $25 dollar shoes only two days worn.

One of our residents, Arnold Vardy of Bancroft has decided to leave our company. Naturally we will miss him, having a sort of special sense of humour that was amusing. He did more hooking of rugs or making of place mats than any of us. Harold Austin of Haliburton was admitted to our gang about the same time. He is a quiet chap but is settling in nicely and will be an old timer in no time.

Wednesday morning the time finally arrived for our cruise among the thousand islands, a trip that has been planned for the past three months. Not all of us could go because it required that a person could sustain the rigours of overnight camping, and wanted to go. These people qualified and formed our party, Mrs. Hazel Parish, Alice Harlie, Ray Smith, Norman Titus, Ezra Lott, Dr. Anderson, Charlie Welch, Mary Currah, and Miss Shirley Frost. These were our helper-drivers, Jim and Mrs. Doris Cooper, Mrs. Pat Burk, Mrs. Gail Medcalf and last, Mrs. Miriam Lewis, the party's organizer. Mrs. Ruth Griffin, R.N., was the nurse assigned.

We got on our way about 7:15 a.m. down 121 to Bancroft, 62 to the 401 at Belleville, thence to Kingston to the dock where the "Island Queen" was waiting, and soon we were on the cruise. Lunch that we brought was served and we were free to move about on the boat. It was a very nice day and the viewing from the boat was excellent. We did not go down the islands as far as a view of the Ivy Lee bridge, but after about 3 1/2 hours we were back at the dock and from there to Extendicare Kingston, where we were given a very cordial welcome and an excellent supper. Naturally thanks were in order and we proceeded to an Ontario camping site a little beyond Iroquois, where we pitched the tent with the greatest of complications, doing and undoing because by that time it was cold, blowing rain and the parts that came with the tent would not fit and finally with a complicated system of rope guys to the three vehicles we got the tent to stabilize right side up. The ladies at first opted for the tent but when they saw it they chose the campers giving the men the tent.

We slept with no further incident, had our breakfast camp style and proceeded to Upper Canada Village to be met by a flower display that set our own here of which we were all proud, in a comparative shade. This is a most remarkable historical memorial to all the people who settled in this part of Eastern Ontario, especially the United Empire Loyalists, the refugees of the American Revolutionary War. This memorial is a village containing a woolen mill, a water powered saw mill using a straight saw, a blacksmith shop, a general store where coffee could be had at 10 cents a cup, a carpenter shop, a broom making shop, a museum, and so on to make a long list. It sure was worth our while to go.

We returned via Morrisburg, taking highway 31 to 43 to take us to Perth where we had a chicken dinner with cole slaw, and a piece of cantelone. Our route was #7, 62, 28, and 131 finally to Haliburton.

It was a good time, a statement vouched for by the whole party. We are glad to assign the credit for its success to Mrs. Miriam Lewis. And now all of us are disturbed to learn that she is leaving us as activity director. We all wish her happiness in her retirement.

Pastor Glen Rosch of the Full Gospel Lighthouse was our spiritual guide for the devotional period Friday morning, his wife Julie, pianist, Charles Plewman, Harmonica. The theme was on the 10 lepers who asked Christ to heal them, but only one of the 10 offered thanks. It is up to us to thank Him for being our personal Saviour. Pastor and Julie Rosch offered a very nice duet and Mrs. Rosch a very nice solo accompanying herself on her accordion. It was a good service and a nice chat after, over tea and biscuits.

Friday afternoon were movies, showing first, "Railroader", second "Yukon, old and new", and third, "Kalaidescape". Each of these were equal in being a hodge podge of ideas without objective.

Guild of Fine Arts news

by Carole McLean

How many times have you admired that lovely bowl or planter in your friend's home, or those lovely pillows that fit so well into the decor of her livingroom, not to mention the Baltic wall hanging or that hooked rug with the unusual design? Finally you summon your courage and ask her where she got them and she casually tells you she made them herself, while you, struck with admiration and disbelief, choke on your coffee.

Sound familiar? Well, in the coming weeks we plan to tell you how you too can say "I made them myself" through the Haliburton Guild of Fine Arts. Each week we will attempt to give you an inside view of some of the activities involved in our groups, such as pottery, spinning and weaving, rug hooking, choral group, the Summer Theatre and our newest, the Visual and Performing Arts. In this way we hope to express our plans for the future as well as give you a picture of our past, our own "Dream of Excellence" as expressed by Nila Reynolds.

With this hope - that you too can enjoy as we have, the Guild provides an opportunity to grow and to make productive use of your spare time, whether it be as a hobby or a craft that could one day lead you into a profitable career. Please watch for these opportunities in your "Coming Events" column or under the heading of courses supplied by Sir Sanford Fleming College's School of Fine Arts.

Whichever direction it takes you it will give you a chance to enjoy, as we have, the companionship of others in our growing community.

Volunteers

In this, our first column, we would like to make mention of our Summer Exhibition and Sale, as well as the Summer Theatre - and of those who so unselfishly participated by volunteering their time and effort in making them both a rousing success. If you visited this year's Summer Exhibition and Sale, you were one of the 4,438 people who did. This is the best attendance ever.

Kay Barry, who was in charge of the quilting bee, had many of her visitors sign a guest log and we noted that many were from the United States and Europe. Could this possibly be a sign of things to come? We hope so.

Of our 90 crafts men and women who exhibited, 78% sold items, with several of our own guild members taking first and second scholarship prizes in the varied divisions. The majority of paintings however, were done by out of town artists.

Just in case, you're wondering what we do with money received and door donations - 50% goes towards sending 45 Haliburton County school pupils to summer courses at the Haliburton School of Fine Arts, as well as the scholarship awards that go to the adult winners of the Summer Exhibition and Sale. The remaining 50% helps to offset some of the show's expenses. All in all it was a large undertaking for our county during its busiest period, and without our members and many friends it could not have been possible. We thank you all.

Summer Theatre

As the applause from the capacity crowd that filled the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School auditorium, brought the curtain down on the final performance of two, one act comedies performed by the Lindsay Little Theatre Group, another season of fine entertainment came to an end. Along with the collection of mixed plays were included for the first time, two evenings of music. The first was a Jamaican group that played to a capacity crowd. The second was an instrumental trio, consisting of trumpet, flute and piano, which was greeted by mixed reactions.

None the less, it left us with the thought that it was in total a season of fine entertainment and that the evenings of music would be included again next year - Thank you for attending - see you next year.

Buyers of all ages came to the Glamorgan garage and rummage sale on Saturday afternoon. Here, three young customers pick out some interesting merchandise.

Residents hope to organize

Haliburton County may have learning problems association

Haliburton County will have an association for children with learning disabilities if a few concerned county residents have their way.

Gerry Feltham, spokesman for the group, said this week that a meeting will be held next Thursday, September 21 at the Haliburton Legion Auditorium. Guest speaker for the evening will be Rosemary Underwood, Executive director of the Ontario Association for Children with Learning Disabilities.

Children who are called lazy, indifferent or undisciplined, or who have unusual difficulty with mathematics or communication subjects are often not problem children, but rather children with problems, according to a release from the organizers of the meeting. Many of these children are now being recognized as having specific learning disabilities which can be helped.

Throughout Ontario, the release says, concerned individuals have taken positive action. They have formed community associations for children with learning disabilities to provide guidance for parents and to acquaint and inform professional groups and individuals of the special needs of the learning disabled.

Parents in Haliburton County now have a chance to help with the problem, the release says.

The meeting next Thursday will see the establishment of a local association the organizers hope.

Following the talk by Rosemary Underwood there will be an opportunity to ask questions. A nomination committee is also expected to be set up at the Thursday meeting.

The meeting begins at 8 p.m.

The Rich Worldling
"So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God." Luke 12:21.

The story of the rich worldling is presented by the Lord Jesus upon the request by a certain would be follower, that He speak to his brother about his share of the inheritance. Luke 12:13.

The man Jesus described was his answer to that request. This worldling lived for self and was not concerned about anything else. He was no doubt a very respected man in the community and not one word is said about him of immorality or any outspoken wickedness. So far as the record goes, he may have been a refined, moral and self-respecting gentleman and a man highly respected by his friends and neighbours. In fact he was a very successful business man, a very prosperous farmer.

In his pursuit after the things of this world the man completely forgot to look to the eternal side of life. Material wealth leads to a sense of self-security and safety, and how easy it is to trust in that security. There is nothing wrong with possessions, but the danger is that when rich and prosperous, God is forgotten and riches become the god in his place. Eph. 5:5. Col. 3:5.

The man the Lord Jesus described lacked good sense and understanding, although he was prudent and successful. He was not a loafer, nor was he a parasite to society, his ambition was to get along on his own steam. With all this his credit he is called a "fool" by the Lord, he lived only for time and paid no attention to eternity. The man Jesus described did not recognize God in all his life and plans. He paid no attention to the fact that what came to him by way of possessions, came to him by the providence and goodness of God. The account says that "he thought within himself," and with his mind centred upon himself he talked with himself, but he never once thought of talking to God. James 1:17, Math. 5:45, Acts 17:25.

All he recognized was his own great and important self, and presumptuously calculated on years to come.

It is thus that in his reasoning he would say to himself, "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years, take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry." Luke 12:19. The uncertainty of life is very evident, but this man counted on many years and lulled himself to sleep in calculating on them. Listen to him boast, "This will I do," and "thou hast much goods laid up for many years," verse 18. It would have been much better for him to say "if the Lord will," rather than boast of future time. Prov. 27:1, James 4:13-16. God had to remind this self-complacent fool that "time" was not in his own power. Luke 12:20. His "many" years was met by "this night." This man did not think of the fact that man is a thing not of his own and his breath is a gift of God.

Jesus called this man a "fool" because he was laying up treasures on earth and was not rich toward God. Luke 12:21. He was prepared to meet life with its demands, but not to meet death and future judgement. Fools live for this world only, but wise and prudent men accept Christ as their Saviour and Lord and live for Him and the world to come. John 27-29, Rom. 14:7-8. Just when this man was scheming cunningly and thinking himself wise, yes very wise, God said to him, "Thou fool." He saw this man, heard him think and talk with himself and comfort his soul about the future, and then said to him, "this night thy soul shall be required of thee." Luke 12:20.

"This night," his end came unexpected and sudden.

There was no previous warning and now there is no delay. The end is upon him. In the midst of his prosperity and riches and his dreams of "many" years is cut off. The summons came and he had no other choice, the death warrant came to him and he must get up and leave unprepared for what lay ahead. The greatest of all issues had been left unsettled and unmet. These are solemn realities after time comes eternity, and in due time comes the judgement, the sentence, and the eternal destiny. Rev. 20:11-15.

Jesus would teach us by the account of the man He called "a fool", that the things of time, that grip men's thoughts, whether rich or poor are not the most important in life. He came to meet man's need for eternity and all who spurn Him must meet their maker regardless of their neglect of Him. Hebrews 9:27.

Women's courses are planned for autumn

Six courses designed for women will be among those offered this fall through the northern campus of Sir Sandford Fleming College in the Lakeview Centre in Haliburton. And Blanche Turner, co-ordinator of those courses, says they have been designed to answer needs expressed by women across the county.

Among the courses offered are "Assertiveness Training for Women" and "A second Look", both of which are designed to help women cope with difficulties they encounter frequently.

Blanche Turner, who is instructing the assertiveness course along with Sandra Fecht, says the course is meant "for people who are either passive or overly aggressive in certain situations", especially in their dealings with family, friends, merchants and employers. Those who take the eight two hour sessions of the course will be encouraged to exercise their rights without putting down others, and to say "no" without feeling guilty.

A lot of people think that its aggressiveness training" Turner says, but she emphasizes that it isn't. "Aggressive people put down the other person. Assertiveness is in between aggression and passivity."

The course is based on "Behaviour Modification", the idea that responses to certain situations are learned and can be changed through knowledge and awareness.

Turner admits that such a course has certain dangers, but she says the danger only arises if instructors are attempting to provide therapy for individuals with serious personality problems. "It's not therapy," she says. "It's not for people who really are passive in every situation."

The course will put heavy emphasis on consumer relations, Turner says, with a view to helping women assert themselves in their dealings with merchants.

Turner says similar courses have been taught in many areas of the province over the last few years.

"A second look" is a course intended for women whose children are now in school or have grown up and have left home. Such women may be asking themselves, "now what do I do?" Turner says, the course was run in Cobourg last year "and women really like it." Among the topics to be discussed in the course are decision making, women and work, adult development, and setting and attaining goals.

Other courses offered for women this fall include, "Discussion for Women", consisting of speakers and discussions on a number of topics, "Budget Childrens Clothing", another on home repairs and maintenance and one called "On Children" which is intended for both men and women. Interest in this course has been expressed particularly by the single parent group formed in the county earlier this year.

The emphasis at the moment is on daytime courses, Turner says, and babysitting service is available for some of the courses at a slight extra charge.

Turner said the college is interested in determining the areas of interest that women would like to see covered. As well, the college hopes to be able to offer courses in other communities besides Haliburton and Minden. More courses will be offered in Minden this year than last year "because people have been asking for them there instead of in Haliburton."

The number of women's courses offered in the winter and spring sessions of the college in the Haliburton area could be increased if enough interest is shown in them, Turner says.

"The college will change in response to the needs of the community," she said.

Bishop to visit area

The Bishop of Toronto, The Right Reverend Lewis S. Garsworthy, beginning a series of extended visits to the various areas of his diocese, will be spending the first three days of October in the counties of Victoria and Haliburton.

Included in this tour will be a variety of educational and liturgical events as well as many opportunities for personal contact and dialogue with local residents.

Clergy and laity from the areas have arranged an itinerary for the Bishop which includes visits to: Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay, Haliburton, Kilmount, Burnt River and Cannington.

The Reverend E.W. Lowin, Rector of St. Paul's Anglican Church in Lindsay and Regional Dean of Victoria and Haliburton will be in charge of arrangements for Bishop Garsworthy's tour.

The Bishop has indicated that he "looks forward to a creative, purposeful visit with the clergy and laity of the area and to spending extra time in the beautiful fall setting of Victoria and Haliburton."

Hunting permits available

Ontario's duck hunters are advised to obtain their Canada migratory bird hunting permits as quickly as possible to avoid a possible mail strike in September. Natural Resources Minister James Auld said this week.

"The permits have been on sale at post offices since August 1 but a postal strike could occur by mid-September, about the time peak sales of permits usually begin," Auld warned.

"Therefore, I suggest that duck hunters should obtain their permits soon, to avoid disappointment if the post offices close."

Chatting with Irene

There is a saying that "after the rain cometh the fair weather"; but after this rain we will likely get frost, then maybe fair weather. One thing we all know and that is that if we get too much rain this month the fall colours will not be good. The bus tours will then be disappointed, but then what is more unpredictable than the weather; unless it is a woman.

Two young ladies from this area are taking the R.N.A. course at Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay. They are Mrs. A.J. Hewitt (Gwen Walker) and Miss Laura Bird. We wish them well during their training.

Mrs. Mary Maidens spent last week in Toronto visiting with Harry and Ivy Bolton. Mrs. Beatrice Taylor, Mrs. Norma Davies and Tara spent the weekend at Trenton with the Wayne Taylors.

Winner of the T.V. at I.G.A. last Saturday was G. Gihooliv.

Last week visitors with the Jim Burtons were Mrs. Freda Davis of Hereford; Mrs. Doris Meek of England and G. Meek of Etobicoke.

Mr. Harry Campbell is home after a very successful salmon fishing trip at Campbell River. On his way home he stopped off for a visit with Catherine at Fernie, B.C.

Have you seen the lovely rippled Afghan that is to be drawn for on September 20? This is being drawn for at the W.I. meeting, and all the members still have tickets if you want some.

It is the start of all fall events; the U.C. Bowling League started on Tuesday, the Mini Card parties start Tuesday Sept. 21 at the Parish Hall at 1:30 p.m. sharp. Everyone is welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Robinson visited in Lindsay last week with Mrs. Nobel Dunn. Son, Bradley was home for a few days on his way back to London after a trip to Nashville Tennessee, where he had spent an enjoyable weekend and had a chat with the father of Johnny Cash.

Mr. Fred Brooks has returned to B.C. after combining business and pleasure, as he visited friends in the area, while on a business trip.

Visitors at the home of Wm. Moore last Sunday were the Lloyd Brownridges of Scarborough. Alan Brydsons of Bracebridge, Mrs. Ethel Harrison and the Earl Birds of R.R. #2, Minden. The family had gathered to help Bill celebrate his 70th birthday.

Did you know that a squeeze of lemon juice into the cooking water will keep white vegetables white. Also if preparing fresh fish salad squeeze some fresh lemon juice over the fruits to keep them from discolouring.

If you are wondering where Jerry Campbell and David Brown have been these past few weeks; they have been in Tillsonburg, trying out for hockey. They played a game in London last week which was lost, but have no more news since.

Mrs. Renee Burns has gone for a stay with her nephew in Willowdale.

The Women's Institute members are asked to remember the first fall meeting will be next Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Bunker at Mountain Lake. All are asked to meet at the Post Office at 1:30 p.m. sharp for rides to the meeting.

While the Ted Johnstons, Ray Johnston and Larry Parsons were holidaying at the Fred Wrights, they also visited Lewis Kent in Orillia and other friends from Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Graham have left for a holiday in the British Isles. Phil had the misfortune to severely cut several of his fingers just a few days before his trip.

I have always enjoyed the small onions that are in sweet pickles, and eat lots of them, so am going to try this recipe if I can find the onions. Pickled Onions - 2 quarts tiny white onions; 1/2 cup coarse pickling salt; 3 cups white vinegar; 3 cups white sugar.

Sprinkle salt over peeled onions, cover and let stand over night. Drain and rinse with cold water. Combine vinegar and sugar; bring to a boil and simmer for 5 minutes. Add onions and simmer gently for 5 minutes. Pack into hot sterilized jars, covering onions with hot liquid. Seal. Makes 4 pints.

The garage sale and the Flea Market both reported having a lot of business last Saturday, so hope they had a lot of cash as well.

There was a good attendance at the Minden & District Horticultural meeting last Tuesday evening and the plant auction went over great. Everyone enjoyed hearing Mr. Phil Graham explain about weather conditions and how we are affected here.

The speaker at the October meeting will be Mr. Ray Halward from Hamilton Botanical Gardens. Don't forget this is October 3. Mark the date on your calendar, as a bus trip is being planned to these Gardens later in October.

Boy, I hate these rain days. They make me sleepy so Adios and take care now.

Since no one had won the Bingo jackpot, the ladies auxiliary who sponsor the Bingo, decided to call the numbers on Monday, September 4, until the jackpot was won. Lucky winner of $145.00 was Mrs. Earl (Doris) Bartley but not until 64 numbers were called. This concludes the Bingo games until further notice. Thank you to everyone who came and supported this fun evening and we hope to see all of you again next year. Special thanks to caller, Phyllis Le-Craw and Marlene, Marilyn and Doris Bartley who worked hard in organizing and co-ordinating the games. And to the ladies of the auxiliary of the firemen who helped in the refreshment booth.

Norland Library hours are back to normal after special longer opening hours during July and August. The library is open Tuesdays 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 7:00 to 9:00 p.m., Thursdays 3:00 to 5:00 p.m., Fridays 7:00 to 9:00 p.m., and Saturdays 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. This is your public library so use it and enter a whole new world of reading adventure, travel, crafts, hobbies, etc.

Perhaps you have noticed that the local water pressure has been stronger as of late than it was earlier in the summer. Two new water pressure switches were installed this past week making it possible to have the pressure system set higher than it was before. If we are fortunate in not having any pipe line breaks, maybe the better water pressure will stay for awhile. In the meantime, enjoy the fact that your automatic washer and bathtub are filling much faster and sooner.

On Wednesday, September 6, 36 grandmothers, Women's Institute members and friends enjoyed a delicious and nutritious salad luncheon in the institute hall prepared by the members. Ralph and Ruth Brown of Head Lake who are naturalists and apt photographers, showed some of their colourful and interesting slides of birds, wild flowers, trees etc. to the enthusiastic audience as part of the program after lunch. The ladies of the W.I. were most pleased that so many attended their special grandmother's meeting this year.

It must be the fall season because bowling will be starting later this month. If you are interested in bowling with the Norland team every Wednesday Evening at 9:00 p.m. at the Fenelon Falls Bowling Lanes, please contact Rotha Bryant at the post office or call 454-3771. We have a very zealous group of bowlers and would like to have 8 teams of 5 people this year. You would be most welcome to join us either as a regular or spare bowler.

Full Council met in the municipal office at 7:15 p.m. on Wednesday, September 6. At the meeting, William Evans was authorized to prepare an agreement, to be signed by the reeve and the clerk, allowing the buildings on the lot on the north west corner of Cockburn Street and highway 503 (part of Lot 6, Conc. XI, Laxton) to remain in their existing positions, encroaching on Cockburn St., so long as said buildings remain in existence and no further encroachment is to be permitted.

Mrs. Barnes Sr., has returned to her home in Oshawa after a pleasant visit with her son and his family in Carnarvon.

St. Peter's Anglican Church Women will gather at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday Sept. 13 at the home of Mrs. Violet Smith, for their first meeting of the fall. There will be much business to discuss since there are just a few weeks before the annual Thanksgiving Dinner Oct. 7; and any knitting or other things prepared for the first shipment of supplies to the Diocesan Centre in Toronto, will be brought in ready for packing. Let's hope all members attend this first meeting, and that they are full of interest and ready to get the ball rolling for another good year's work.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Calwell spent part of the Labour Day weekend with Elizabeth's parents, the John Dyers. It seemed strange not seeing two smart little girls, Dawn and Lis Calwell visiting Grandpa and Grandma Dyer also. They were having a happy visit with other relatives.

All roads lead to Carnarvon lanes, this week, where most leagues, both afternoon and evening, will be getting organized under new committees, ready for another season's bowling. Some of us are quite rusty after an idle summer, so it takes a few nights of bowling to get our scores up to par. Good bowling everybody!

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Redner drove to Oakville on Sunday to take Susan and help get her settled in residence at Sheridan College. During the last two summers, Susan has been involved in Library work throughout the County, and has really enjoyed this. Now she is starting a two year course in Library Technology. Our best wishes for a successful career, go with Susan, as she works on her chosen course.

Happy Birthday Greetings to all who are celebrating this special event in September.

Congratulations to all A.C.W. members who donated the various items for the Minden Fair exhibit of "A Baby Shower". Special mention must be made of Mrs. Phrona Sisson who so skillfully arranged the display, leading the judges to place a Special Prize ticket on the St. Peter's entry.

Miss June Smith of Horse-shoe Lake has come to our neighbourhood to spend the next few months with Mrs. Winnifred Johnson as a companion housekeeper. May these two ladies have happy times together.

This is a reminder to St. Peter's congregation. Don't forget to attend the special Vestry meeting in the church basement Wednesday Sept. 13 at 7:30 p.m. Agenda - several important matters concerning the church to be brought up and we'll need your vote.

A joint project being carried out between the townships of Anson, Hindon, Minden and Stanhope is the erection of a vault for winter storage when cemetery interments are not possible.

The most central location for the townships involved was found to be in the cemetery property of the Twelve Mile Lake Presbyterian Church.

If you happen to be driving along the lakeshore, past the church you will see this modest building as it nears completion. The members of the Vault Committee together with Mr. Gordon Monk, of the John Welch & Son funeral parlours, who has helped with this project in an advisory capacity, agree that the contractor, Mr. Douglas Wall of Maple Lake is completing a most satisfactory piece of work.

The United Church held a successful sale last Saturday. To those who donated items and helped in any way, your help was most appreciated. Mr. and Mrs. Ken Fralick and Clara Schell are home after a vacation with friends at Berrin Springs, Michigan.

Mrs. Dorothy Bain of Haliburton and yours truly were guests at a Team Leader dinner at Holiday Inn at Orillia on Wednesday.

The Happy Wanderers Choral Group are anticipating their part in entertaining at the up-coming Lindsay fair. Be sure and look for this talented musical group when you are at the fair. They take their singing very seriously and are worth going to see and hear.

Friday, the group visited a Haliburton lodge and Thursday the bus took a load of Senior Citizens to Toronto to see The Sound of Music. Thirty-one members of the New Horizons turned out for rehearsal and practice and that was an excellent turn-out since it is difficult to find a convenient time for each one. Good going folks! I trust your ranks will strengthen as the months come along.

"Ye old jail" is open Saturdays from now until Thanksgiving for tourists wishing information so be sure to take advantage of this service.

If the enumerator has not already called, you can look for one along any day. This must be a frustrating job since some folks are hard to find at home due to their hours of work or shift work - then again some houses and farms are hard to find. If you have been missed contact your local municipal office and make sure you are counted. Don't you think it must be some job - keeping track of the population?

Our little sign, approaching Coboconk from the south reads, population 700. There certainly must have been some changes through the years and I for one would like to know, just what is our population?

HHSS has new track to add to facilities

Haliburton Highlands Secondary School has a new 400 metre track to add to its physical education facilities.

The track, which was upgraded this year to a regulation competition facility, is 21 feet wide and has a two-inch by six-inch pine curbing bordering the running surface.

Haliburton County donated fill so the school board could increase the length of the previous facility. It cost the board $1,188 in transportation charges to get the fill to the high school site.

Fifty per cent of the cost of the upgrading has been donated by the school's Girls Athletic Association, which contributed $2,200. It began fund-raising for the project in 1974.

The remainder of the cost of the new track will be borne by the board of education.

An artist: Jean Frazer creates beauty with her brush, using nature as a source of inspiration

by Gord Lavale

Creativity is a way of life for Jean Frazer of Gooderham.

She captures nature on canvas, in verse and through lyrics. Creative since early childhood, she recalls receiving crayons and coloured pencils as her first presents. Painting, writing poetry and composing songs come easily to her, she says. "With the experience of years," she adds, "comes more and more creativity."

Mrs. Frazer's paintings, which range from oils to pastels to water colours and pen and ink sketches, decorate the walls of her home. Her poetry and music are contained on tape. She turns her lyrics into music on a large electric organ located in the living room.

"People who have a creative ability," she believes, "have a responsibility to share it with other members of society."

Her creativity is greatly enhanced by the location of her home, she says.

She and her husband, David, left Toronto permanently more than four years ago to settle in the Haliburton Highlands. They have owned the property, approximately 100 acres located just off Highway 503 south of Gooderham, since 1946. The couple constructed a log cabin on the property in 1960 and spent their leisure moments away from the city at their retreat.

They waited anxiously over the years while residing in Toronto for the day their plans of retirement would bear fruit. In 1974, they retired and moved permanently to the Haliburton area. While constructing a larger, more comfortable residence, they lived in the cabin.

The couple moved into their permanent quarters a short time later. The house, a large one-storey residence, was designed by Mrs. Frazer and constructed by her husband. It contains a large living area, kitchen and two bedrooms. Contained in a corner of the basement is a studio for painting.

Her paintings are predominantly of nature. "I am inspired by the natural surroundings," explains the artist.

Mrs. Frazer's poetry focuses on two themes - nature and philosophy. "It (her creations) all ties together," she says.

A product of a creative environment (her mother dabbled in painting and her grandfather was a wood carver; she studied music at the Royal Conservatory in Toronto. She has taught people including a daughter, the finer points of painting.

A tape recorder is constantly kept beside her bed to capture her thoughts while resting.

"I paint pictures in my sleep and always carry a pad and pencil everywhere I journey," she explained.

In the winter, she and her husband snowshoe over their property and enjoy the natural surroundings.

She does not follow any methods of creativity, such as setting a goal each day of accomplishing a certain amount of creative activity, yet finds herself bursting with ideas for new paintings, poetry and music.

Mrs. Frazer has had one-man exhibitions in Toronto of her paintings. More recently, she donated one of her paintings to be raffled. The proceeds from the raffle will go towards the new park to be constructed at Gooderham.

She admits she does not promote her work as other artists do by employing an agent to publicize her efforts. She prefers to sell the occasional painting to interested people.

The artist records her poetry in her own voice on a tape recorder and plays it back to herself while sitting at her organ and composing music to accompany the poems. A Peterborough radio station asked her to submit some of her tapes of poetry for use on the air on Valentine's Day earlier this year. The station anchored its broadcast with Mrs. Frazer's poems.

She surrounds her days

Just the other day, our Rome guide informed us, a gentleman had had his wallet, containing $450 Australian, lifted right in St. Peter's, the largest church in the world. We had a nice few moments of vicarious excitement when Glynis, from Australia, discovered her watch, worth $450, and a gift from her husband, was missing from her wrist. She said she'd felt a very soft, slight movement, looked down, and the watch was gone. She was distraught. So were we all. Twenty minutes later, she found it in her bag, the turkey. It had slipped off her wrist and fallen into her purse.

Some of the ladies were so nervous they took the unprecedented step of pinning their credit cards inside their bras. I played it safe. I never gave my wife more than a coin for the john, and I kept my cash in one pocket, my travelers' cheques in another, and my credit card in a third, so that I wouldn't be made bankrupt by one swell foop.

It was a bad year to visit Europe, with inflation rampant there (cuppa coffee or Coke well over $1.00), the Canadian dollar diddling around 88 cents, and the American dollar sliding. Hotels run around $48 to $60 a night, and that's not the Savoy or the Ritz.

But woe the hell, Archie, it's only the price of a new car, and a small one, at that. Take your trip and drive the old heap for another couple of years. You can't sit around in an old car 20 years from now, and exchange things like: "Remember the pinchy-pinchy party in Rome, where the waiter, straight-faced, pinched each lady's bum as he served her soup or pasta?"

Ministry of Transportation and Communications is to be petitioned for an interim subsidy on 1978 road expenditure up to October 31.

A two foot by four foot sign, reading "Discharge of Firearms Prohibited" is to be made and erected at the waste disposal site. Elwood Baldwin was authorized to place sufficient large stones at the Head Lake Sunset Beach to confine vehicles to the boat launching roadway. Norland Women's Institute was given a grant of $60.76 for 1978.

Do you need warm, attractive winter coats, sweaters, pants etc. and are not too happy about the high cost of clothing these days? You would be wise to visit the Norland U.C.W. Opportunity Shop and choose from the large selection of nearly new clothing, budget-priced for all ages and sizes. The shop is open Saturdays 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. until Thanksgiving, weather permitting. It is on the east side of highway 35 just south of highway 503.

I will be away on a short holiday this coming week so there will be no Norland Notebook in the paper on September 13 - 14. My daughter and I will be seeing some of Northern Ontario and Michigan in their fall colours as we travel with Denure Bus Tours on a seven day Lakehead Colour Trip. I will endeavour to keep notes of our stops of interest and tell you about them after I return. See you in two weeks!

Haliburton Highlights by Creighton Feir

In talking with a couple of members of the West Guilford Recreation Centre they told me that if some help doesn't soon arrive they could be in for some real problems. Volunteers are desperately needed to head the various committees at the West Guilford Recreation Centre. The present committee's terms are up as of September 1978 and the Centre needs your support. All those interested please make an effort to attend the meeting to be held at the Centre tonight (Wednesday, December 13th at 8:00 p.m.). This will give everyone the opportunity to discuss the situation and to state their views. Try to get out to this meeting.

Boice Motor Sales Ltd. announced last week that they now have a new heavy duty tow truck for Haliburton. It's a 750 Holmes that will give 24 hour service.

Russ Murphy, a lawyer from Oshawa who has a cottage on Drag Lake was a recent speaker at the Rotary Club of Haliburton. He gave a very interesting talk and pointed out several humorous court room incidents.

It makes one wonder just how far this problem of vandalism can go. Brant Stamp was forced to announce last week that the Car Wash at Boice Motor Sales at Haliburton is closed permanently due to vandalism.

We understand that break-ins in the Highlands of Haliburton are down from this period a year ago. Those hardest hit seem to be the business places in the village of Haliburton.

Rotary's 75th anniversary will be February 23, 1980. The R.I. Board encourages every Rotary Club which includes Haliburton and Minden, where feasible to conduct a specific program or activity during 1979-80 in commemoration of the 75th anniversary, with special attention to be given to the commemoration during the week of February 23, 1980.

Nick Beverley who has a cottage in the Haliburton area and who spends most of his summers here and has been playing on the defence for the Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League and who was their captain last year has been traded to the Los Angeles Kings.

Have you ever had a "deaf-mute" hand you a card - and the card is asking for a donation? How can you really know if such a person is a mute - and if they are, doesn't our government give them a fairly good pension? My aunt and I had this happen at the Toronto Ex. Once before I had been "taken" by a so-called deaf-mute so watch it when at the local fairs and exhibitions. Don't be misled by these professional beggars!

We are sorry to learn that Bill Emmerson of Emmerson Lumber Limited is at present in hospital with a back problem. We wish him a speedy recovery and hope that it won't be too much longer before he will be back at his place of business.

Nick Beverley who has a cottage in the Haliburton area and who spends most of his summers here and has been playing on the defence for the Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League and who was their captain last year has been traded to the Los Angeles Kings.

The Haliburton Cubs held their registration night on Monday, September 11 and registration for Beavers will be held at the Scout Hall next to the Curling Rink on Wednesday, September 20th at 7 p.m. It would appear that many more boys will be joining Beavers this year and this means that more help will be needed. If you are interested in helping out with the Beavers please be on hand on registration night. The Scouts will hold their registration on Thursday evening September 14th at the Senior Elementary School.

Larry Hunter who is employed by Hunter Lumber Limited at Gooderham will be the guest speaker when the Brotherhood of Anglican Churchmen hold their monthly communion and breakfast meeting at St. Andrew's Anglican Church at West Guilford this coming Sunday morning, September 17th at 8 a.m. All members and visitors are urged to attend.

With silo filling underway in the area, we wish to remind farmers to be aware of silo gas. The danger of this gas has to be taken seriously since three farmers lost their lives to it in one silo in Ontario last fall.

This fall could be a bad one for silo gas. The drought earlier this summer could produce the conditions which cause silo gas production.

Under normal growing conditions the Nitrogen in the soil is taken up by plants in the nitrate form, and then, transformed by the plant into protein. However, with abnormal growing conditions such as drought, the plant is slow to change the nitrates into protein, and there is a build up of nitrates in the stalk.

When these plants are chopped and put into a silo to ensile, the nitrates are released to form nitrogen dioxide - the deadly silo gas.

A number of conditions in addition to drought, can cause stress in corn plants with a resultant build-up of nitrates in the plant. Cloudy, cool weather, weedy fields, leaves damaged by hail, can all be responsible. Also, if a corn field is over-fertilized with nitrogen and then the plants are put under stress, they will concentrate abnormal levels of nitrate in the stalks.

The occurrence of silo gas is unpredictable - it varies from year to year, and farm to farm. This adds to the danger, since no one can be sure when it may develop.

Silo gas is a reddish to yellowish-brown gas that smells like bleach - however, often you can neither see or smell it. It is heavier than air and thus hangs over the surface of the silage, or spills down the chute of a tower silo into the feed room.

Silo gas can be present within a few hours of putting in silage, with the greatest danger being 12 to 60 hours later. The danger period can last up to three weeks. Silo gas can cause irritation of the eyes, throat and lungs, and can result in pneumonia - like respiratory problems days, or even weeks after exposure.

Problems with silo gas usually occur in tower silos, but can occur in any silage storage situation which has poor ventilation.

Here are a few precautions farmers should note:

Don't harvest corn for silage too early when the plants may still be immature.

Make sure any silage distribution equipment is properly serviced and adjusted before starting to fill the silo.

Fill the silo quickly - then stay out if at all possible for two to three weeks.

Put doors in the silo only up to the top of the silage, leaving at least 1 door open just above silage level.

If at all possible leave a blower attached to the fill pipe so that silo ventilation with fresh air is possible if someone must enter during the dangerous time period. (Run the blower at least 15-20 minutes before attempting to enter a silo.)

If any exposure to silo gas is encountered - get a doctor immediately. Make sure he understands the nature of your exposure.

Further information on silo gas is readily available for the Lindsay Agricultural Office.

Eakins questions minister in letter

Registry offices to stay open: Grossman

John Eakins, M.P.P. (Victoria-Haliburton) said today that "when it was first rumoured that the Counties of Victoria and Haliburton might be on a preferred list for the closing of their Registry Office at Lindsay and Minden, I wrote to the Honourable Larry Grossman, Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations. Mr. Grossman assured me at that time that no such action was being planned with either office.

Since that time an article appeared in the Lindsay Post from the Lindsay Real Estate Board suggesting that such a closure was indeed being considered. I again wrote to the Minister asking for a further clarification. I enclose a copy of his reply to me as of August 21st, 1978.

I am asking that if the municipal people, real estate associations or others have further questions, they do not hesitate to contact me. I can assure the citizens of Victoria and Haliburton Counties that if there is any move in the future to remove the functions of these offices within the two counties, then that move will be met with very strong opposition indeed. The Minister is well aware of my feelings in this regard."

Dear John,

What else can I say?

At the present time we are not considering either Minden or Lindsay Registry Offices. If at any time we should decide to consider closing either the Minden or Lindsay Registry Offices, I can assure you that full prior public disclosure will be made, and extensive public consultation will take place. There will be no sudden surprise moves.

In any event, we are not at the present time considering closing either office.

Yours very truly,
Larry Grossman
Minister.

32. IN MEMORIAM
SIPE - In loving memory of a dear mother, Pearl who passed away Sept. 17, 1976.
What would we give her hand to clasp.
Her patient face to see;
To hear her voice, see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some day we'll meet again,
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand again
In heaven, that happy life.
Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by Graydon and Nancy. 13

But they little know the heartache
Our smiles hide all the while.

To the Editor:

I am a frequent visitor to Haliburton and wish to comment on a recent main street development. Your paper states that the municipality of Dysart is planning to save the old railroad station. The station is probably worth saving, just as the municipal building was well worth restoring and members of council are to be commended for their efforts to save out heritage!

At the same time, let me ask you a question: Where was council when it was decided to turn the Village Square into a parking lot? I wonder whether the citizens of Haliburton realize what they have lost! The old brick building and court yard were the focal point, the anchor which held the streetscape together. Without the square, Haliburton is just another anonymous modern village, lacking identity and charm, like so many other places around us.

Ironically, at present, municipalities all over Ontario are establishing LACAC's (Local Architectural Conservation Advisory Committees) and with their help are trying to restore and adapt Ontario's main streets to modern use, without losing the quaintness and charm, which attracts tourists from the big cities looking for a change - (How many village squares are left on Ontario's main streets? I don't know of many others!)

Surely, one could have found an alternative solution, in order to accommodate both, the square and the parking lot without destroying the unity of the street, so ably planned by our forefathers and adapted to modern use.

Yours truly,
Mary Popel
Willowdale, Ontario.
